Quick Print

Provide instant access to documents with Quick Print

QUICK PRINT

Print, copy, fax, scan... and now store your documents

Quick Print extends the capabilities of your Canon multi functional device (MFD) even further. Via a simple configuration, you can provide storage and instant access to key documents – directly from the MFD. And that means there's one central hub to review and print all your information, whenever you need to.

Set-up in minutes

Setting Quick Print up in your office is simple, ideal for companies without dedicated IT departments. A basic structure for your documents is specified and then documents are uploaded to Quick Print, ready for retrieval at any time. Whenever documents are updated, you simply send the changes to Quick Print, to ensure that the latest version is always available at the printer. Information can be in any format - you can even draw information from your company website.

Access in an instant

There's no wasting time searching network directories or your hard drive with Quick Print in the office. Any frequently-accessed documents can be made instantly retrievable - straight from your Canon printer. All staff can then access, preview and print the relevant information instantly, whenever they need it.

Example applications:

Office - Store purchase orders and telephone lists for easy retrieval by staff.

HR department - Policies, procedures and staff appraisal forms can be held for easy access by staff.

Quick Print is designed for configuration on a single Canon MFD device. For multiple Canon machine configurations, choose Quick Print Enterprise.

Customer driven applications

Canon has introduced MEAP, a unique device-embedded Java development tool, to enable new applications to be provided to meet evolving customer requirements. Quick Print is an example of this forward thinking approach to our business. Designed specifically to provide real-time information to journalists via Canon devices during UEFA Euro 2004, it has now been adapted so that all our customers can benefit.
